This is contrasted with the conflict approach, which argues that society is constantly in conflict over resources. In both cases, however, how this is done is very important as it should be done with enough precision that independent researchers should be able to use your description of your measurement or construction of categories, and repeat either or .

As a descendant of the French Enlightenment, Comte was impressed, as were many others, by the scientific revolution. Numerous models could be presented in this vein. This is, in fact, part of what David Halle finds: Scientists use whatever they can – their own creativity, ideas from other fields, induction, deduction, systematic guessing. International cooperation in sociology began in 1893 when René Worms founded the Revue de Sociologie. Worms proposes four highly interdependent elements in his sociological model:
